7000 PERSONS COLLAPSE IN LONDON GRANDSTANDS: 87 SERIOUS; YOUTH KILLED

LONDON, May 12. HOUSANDS collapsed in the coronation crowds today.

Up to 2 p. m., ambulance brigades had treated 7066 persons. Of these, 107 cases were described as "serious," and 87 of the victims were taken to hospitals. The remainder were of minor character, such as fainting and exhaustion.

An English youth, injured with about 20 others in a fight in the Piccadilly Circus district, died in a hospital.

Persons who climbed onto a showcase in a window in Piccadilly Circus were spilled to the floor when the case toppled over, but none was hurt.

Never has the ceremony itself had so wide a significance for the dominions are now free and the people partners with this ancient kingdom. I felt this morning that the whole empire was in very truth gathered within the walls of Westminster Abbey. I rejoice that I can now speak to you all wherever you may be, greeting old friends in distant lands and as I hope new friends in those parts where it has not yet been my good fortune to go.

N this personal way the Queen and I wish health and hap-piness to you all, and we do not forget at this time of celebration those who are living under the shadow of sickness. Their example of courage and good citizenship is always before us. And to them I would send a special message of sympathy and good cheer. I cannot find words with which to thank you for your love and loyalty to the Queen and myself.

Your good will in the streets today, your countless messages from overseas and from every quarter of these islands has filled our hearts to overflowing.

to strike for union recognition and a wage contract.

By the vote the membership au thorized Elmer E. Walker, business agent of District No. 9, International Association of Machinists affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to call the strike at his discretion.

Walker told the Post-Dispatch a strike would be called at 138 automobile agencies and garages tomorrow if the Greater St. Louis Automotive Dealers' Association failed to agree to negotiate today. The organizer said the union was seeking a group contract and would not sign individual contracts with association members.

The union, claiming, to represent 1200 mechanics, is demanding sole recognition for collective bargaining, wages of $1 an hour for mechanics and $1.121/2 for body workers, with a 44-hour week, and weekly guarantees of $40 for body men and $35 for mechanics. Under the present arrangement automobile mechanics are paid on an hourly rate for time worked.

Says Advertised Statements They Would Go Up After April 1 Proved to Be Incorrect.

The Better Business Bureau, in a fuel information bulletin says that statements by two coal companies in advertisements, that coal prices would advance after April 1 be cause of the threatened coal strike, proved to be incorrect.

One company advertised, "Many buyers are saving money by filling their bins now," and "You can beat the rise in prices and save money." Another advertised, "All mines close April 1st," "Prices will be higher when new wage scale, Guffey Coal Stabilization Act and smoke ordinance become effective," and "Low prices will all go up April 1st." In contrast, another advertised more conservatively, "Probable strike April 1. Suggest you fill your bins now, as prices may advance.

"Illustration of the fallacy of such predictions," was cited by the bureau in showing that out of six grades of soft coal, four remained the same price April 22 as they were before April 1, and two actually decreased in price.

In a letter to its employes the corporation said: "Republic does not believe in the closed shop principle." It said the sole issue was the demand for a signed contract. "Both parties to a contract should be responsible," the letter continued.

"Republic is held by law responsible for acts of its officials. C I O does not assume the same kind and measure of responsibility. "The policy of Republic Steel Corporation is that no employe has to join a union to get or hold a job. ... The signing of a C I O union contract would be unfair to the workers who do not favor the union as their collective bargaining agency and to those who prefer to deal for themselves individually with the company.

"The signing of C I O contracts in other industries has not resulted in industrial peace. Notwithstanding signed agreements, sit-down strikes and other interruptions of work have occurred in the automo

Golden said company officers "took he position in the last analysis that they are the only people competent to judge what their employes should do."

Organizers Urge La Follette Inquiry at Youngstown, O. YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 12. The Steel Workers' Organizing Committee asked today the La Folette Civil Liberties Committee to make an investigation of strike preparations at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube plant. The company immediately wired the com mittee welcoming such an investi gation, saying it had met with repesentatives of its employes for collective bargaining, in compliance with the Wagner act.

The steel workers' telegram said the company "has brought into its plant substantial amounts of ammunition, tear gas, cots and food, and has erected searchlights and barbed wire, and has hired additional police. Such a display of force is a plain indication of planned violence by the company against its organized employes. We demand your committee rush an investigating committee to recent organized murder of the steel workers and their families.'

Statement by Dr. Ross A. We to Missouri Association Convention at Cape Girardeau. By the Associated Press

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., May 12.-Dr. Ross A. Woolsey of St. Louis, retiring president of the Missouri State Medical Association. yesterday told the association's eighteenth annual convention that developments in the science of medicine were overshadowing its practice.

High fees now "make it almost impossible" for many to work their way through school and constitute a "danger" by limiting the profession to an "aristocracy of wealth not necessarily best fitted" for the practice of medicine, Dr. Woolsey

Dr. Dudley Conley of Columbia, who will succeed Dr. Woolsey as president of the association, said "no governmental agency should in-terfere with the doctor as long as High School grounds, and, at the he meets his responsibilities."

Dr. Norman F. Miller of the faculty of the University of Michigan School of Medicine told the convention that the practice of obstetrics is not as modern as it should be and advised hospitalization in all prise and was unexplained. rate. The United States, he said. an extremely high maternal death rate and it is not being reindifference of the public" to prenatal care and delivery was listed as one of the causes of deaths among mothers by Dr. Miller.

This proposal has not been acted The State tax rate of 15 cents on the $100 will be retained this night on the Negro school site controversy, which arose when the board adopted the location on the Vashon campus and awarded construction contracts last November. As anticipated, the vote to retain this site, upholding the recommendation of Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gerling and the Sites Committee, was 7 to 5.

Those voting to abandon the site were Dr. Solon Cameron, Mark D. Eagleton, Mrs. Haymer Lowenhaupt, Henry P. Schroeder and President Sullivan. The action was on adop-tion of a majority of the Instruction Committee and rejection of a minority report by Mrs. Lowen-

An injunction suit by a group of Negroes, reflecting the widespread opposition to the Vashon location in the Negro community, will be pressed. It has been set for trial next Monday. Work on the building has not been started.

The vote on the union rule repeal was 11 to 1, James J. Fitzgerald being the sole opponent, although it had been thought he might be joined by Arthur A. Blumeyer. Fitzgerald said he had no objection to elimination of the regulation, but indicated a belief. ulation, but indicated a belief that t should be done through the courts, as suggested by the board last year. Blumeyer said the rule was indefensible and reminded the board it had regularly approved employment of certain vocational teachers who were members of the American Federation of Labor. President Sullivan, explaining his vote for repeal, called attention to the recent poll in which the teaching corps voted, 2243 to 455, in favor of keeping the rule, but he said the prohibition was inconsistent with the law and the right of individual self-determination. The dignity of the teaching profession, he added, was best served by the board's nonintervention in matters of the teacher's individual concern.

Of course, you may object that it's scarcely fair to compare any ball club with the Browns of 1936, and probably you're right. Yes, that was a ball club, the ne plus ultra, the nadir of the national game. It could do things. It was consistent. But let's do a little comparing, anyhow, just to show what can happen in that spot of time they call a year.
Twelve months ago, the Browns

Watch Your Brother, Admiral!

T MAY be brother against brother in the next big test of threeyear-old race horses. This will take place Saturday at Pimlico, Md., where the $50,000 one and three-sixteenths miles Preakness Stakes will be contested.

War Admiral already is favored to take this half of the "double event", with Pompoon furnishing the principal contention, on this

However, there will be a new element and one that did not figure in the Derby-Matey. Here is another son of Man o' War, a half brother to War Admiral. His racing this year has not been impressive because he was brought along slowly, pointing to the Preakness. He was not prepped for or entered in the Kentucky Derby.

Matey a Stretch Runner.

A LTHOUGH the race probably will see Pompoon and the Admiral fighting it out down the stretch, there is a chance that this Matey may cause some

He has great racing blood in his veins, his daddy being the country's greatest racer of all time and his dam being the offspring of St. Germans, sire of Twenty Grand, holder of the alltime Derby record. Matey did not "arrive" until late in 1936. Then he won a couple of good races and finished the campaign with a second to that good stake horse, Privileged.

What will interest race followis the fact that, contrary to the Man o' War style, Matey is not a front runner, but turns on the heat when he hits the stretch. He came from behind in all his races. Practically every chart of his past performances relates that he was "slow to get away" but finished strongly.

When Speed Meets Speed. IN a small field, as the Preak-Iness seems likely to have this year, Matey should be at his best.

That come-on quality, plus his breeding, should give him a look-

It would be dramatic indeed if these two sons of Man o' War should be found fighting it out for first place at the finish. But, the chance for this bit of drama seems remote, unless Matey has Continued on Page 3, Column 6.

Title-Holding Team Has Advantage in Junior Group-No New Marks Are Set in Preliminaries

By Reno Hahn.

University City, long the outstanding track team in the county, may find its reign broken next Friday afternoon when the finals of the nineteenth annual county track and field meet are held at the University City stadium.

In the preliminaries yesterday, the Indians had only one more qualifier than Kirkwood in the senior division, 14-13, with Webster placing 11 in the finals, and Maple-The Indians, however, appeared stronger in the junior division where its qualifiers took most of the first places in their heats. On the basis of past performances and yesterday's trials, the Indians appear to have sure winners in the 120-yard high hurdles, 880yard run and 880-yard relays, with possible firsts in the low hurdles, oole vault, broad jump and high Kirkwood's strength lies in the shotput and discus, the two sprints, pole vault, high jump and the two hurdle races. The winner of the meet will probably get its margin in the third and fourth places, with University City favored. Webster and Maplewood, while having many qualifiers, do not appear to have the first-place possibilities of the other two schools. No records were broken yester-day, due partly to the mediocre field and also to the small number of entrants in each heat and the fine records of previous years.

All preliminaries were concluded yesterday, the small field enabling world as though Hornsby had been also No 3 in the singles list. Robmity City, in charge of the meet, to run off all trials.

M. V. GOLF MEET Word was received today from Marchmont Schwartz, Creighton U. athletic director, that Bob Fraser. Omaha golfer, who was runner-up in the Western amateur last year, will compete in the Missouri Valley golf championships, starting here omorrow. Fraser, who with Johnny Goodman and Rodney Bliss, represented Omaha in the national open last year, is regarded as one of the outstanding young golfers in the Middle West.

Twenty-six players will tee off tomorrow morning at the Westwood Country Club in quest of the title vacated by Tom Draper. The long and treacherous Westwood course is expected to provide ample test The Comeback Trail. for the long-hitting college stars from six schools. Draper's record of 295 for 72 holes, made last year at Tulsa, may be beaten this year. In the team championships, Washington will again have four excellent golfers, who are expected to repeat their triumphs of 1935 and 1936. The team record set by the Hilltop squad last year is 1256. Although Fraser ranks as favorite o win the individual title, George Stamm, the Bears' No. 3 player, finished one stroke ahead of Fraser at Tulsa. Stamm had 298, and developed more speed than he showed as a juvenile. There is still another chance for him, however. It is that Pompoon and War Admiral, both speed merchants, race each other's to come on and win. That happened in the Travers Stakes a few years ago, when only three horses started-Whichone, Gallant Fox and Jim Dandy. The jockeys on Gallant Fox and Whichone set out to run each other's mount into the ground. They both succeeded, and the plug Jim Dandy came on to beat the exhausted stars.

THOSE who saw John Henry Lewis batter Bob Olin almost to mush, in their 15-round championship fight here in 1935 are probably in a mild state of wor der over the announcement that Olin has again been matched with Lewis, the fight to take place here June 3, at 15 rounds, with the title once more at stake.

Olin left a splendid impressio with spectators that night. After almost winning the fight in the second and third rounds, Bob could not hold the lead and Lewis, assuming the offensive, battered his foe from rope to rope, round after round.

Olin took it gamely and fought back until the crowd wondered when he would fall from sheer exhaustion—because it was plain his iron nerve would not let him quit. Savagely as he was punshed he was still putting up a fight at the end of 15 rounds. But so severely was he handled and so decisive was the victory of his opponent, that there seemed no possible loophole for doubt as to which was the superior fighter. That Olin now is willing to risk another blasting of the kind is indication of a courage that will not admit de-

However, the situation is really different today than it was when the men first met. Olin has fought several times and his record is not too encouraging. He was beaten by Al McCoy, Tommy Farr and Red Bruce. Then he improved and began winning. Buck Everett and Leonard Bostick were two of his knockout victims and his showing in his recent bout here impressed Referee Walter Heisner very favorably.

"I was surprised at Olin's appearance and showing against Bostick," commented Heisner.

might expect all the fight to have been knocked out of him. Instead he looked strong and shaps. That he can hit he demonstrated. "Olin is in better mental state now than when he fought Lewis before. Everything had gone heads off, leaving a lesser horse wrong with his affairs then. He had lost all his savings in the stock market. He was in a con-stant wrangle with the Garden and the night he fought it was evident that he would not get the whole of the $15,000 guarantee made him.

"Today he has no load on his mind and he has nothing to lose. He may prove a surprise.' It is safe to say that it will be a fight, no matter how it

Ward Measure Giving Judges Some Parole Functions Killed.

The House, by a vote of 107 to 28, passed and sent to the Senate yesterday the Shannon bills, providing that women serve on juries. During lengthy debate preceding the roll call, the question was FO raised as to whether jury service was a privilege or duty, and whether women actually wanted to serve. Under the bill, mothers, girls under 25, school teachers, pregnant women and those having the care of children, the sick or infirm would be exempted.

Chairman Hamilton of the Republican National committee has recovered his voice. He will be in St. Louis tomorrow to address the John Marshall taken to the air, too, with a program of weekend speeches, which, in the words of the Christian Science Monitor, has ended "a period of almost unprecedented silence in American politics.' The silence dates from the November day last year that definitely terminated the Republican party's status as the majority party. The lease of power had covered three-quarters of a century, with a few explainable interruptions. The land that had flowed with milk and honey had become a continental desert, viewed through political eyes, with only two unimportant cases. This is not to disparage Maine and Vermont, admirable commonwealths, but, as the sole survivors in the family of 48, they were pretty lonely sisters. Only the faith that moves mountains could appraise them as a promising nucleus on which to resurrect the party's once massive and somewhat ornate structure.

There just wasn't anything for Mr. Hamilton or any other Republican to say. So they sat tightlipped, but alertly watching, it may be assumed, for some ray of light in the encircling gloom.

Such a light flashed across the skies on Feb. 5 Mr. Roosevelt's court scheme was a bolt from the blue, if there ever was such a phenomenon. Mr. Hamilton, and his associates in the business of charting the Republican party's way back, must have been tempted to say a lot of things. They resisted. And in that they were as wise as any serpent on any rock. They felt that the Democrats would do all the talking the situation demanded and do it right well. Their judgment has been rewarded. It has been a long time since the country has seen as vehement an intra-party row as the Democrats have been engaged in since that February high noon. BEHIND THE CORONATION.

The coronation symbolizes an evolutionary step in the history of the British Empire, or, more properly, the British Commonwealth of Nations. Since that Commonwealth came into being, with the Statute of Westminster in 1931, the dominions-Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa-have had the status of independent nations, owing allegiance only to the Crown. (The Irish Free State took on the same status, but has now broken that bond as well.) In the words of the statute:

They are autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another or in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

For the first time in history, the world now sees mighty empire united by a purely voluntary bond, while its members retain their individual sovereignty and independence. The ceremony took account of that new status. The dominion Prime Ministers pledged their allegiance, and King George's oath gave recognition to each of their countries.

The British Parliament cannot legislate for the lominions; the British Foreign Office cannot negotiate their treaties. The dominions have no obligation to go to Great Britain's defense if war breaks out. Only the bonds of history, tradition and language, and the strange multiple character of the Crown, hold the Commonwealth together. That is one great significance, behind the pomp and pageantry, of today's ceremonial.

THE COMMISSION'S SELECTION.

In the face of strong protest, the State Highway Commission has selected the southern route through the City of Ladue for the new super-highway instead of what appeared to us to be the logical route, name ly, Clayton road. One of the county's most beautiful areas is now to be bisected with a link of a trans continental highway, with the blighting effect such a road is sure to produce. Since Clayton road, already partly commercial, can never be expected to return to a state of nature, this section of the county henceforth will have two main thoroughfares instead

Perhaps the day will come when some philanthro pist will be inspired to set aside the last piece of unspoiled countryside in St. Louis County, so that posterity can see what life was like in the days be fore the Motor Age.

AVIATION 25 YEARS AGO.

An unknown flyer named Glenn L. Martin made history 25 years ago with the first round-trip overwater flight. Strapping a compass to his leg, wrapping an inflated inner tube around his shoulders as millions more. And can anyone doubt that a lot of a life preserver, he struck out boldly in his home-Republicans are entirely prepared to let a number of made craft, with one wooden pontoon, and flew from Avalon, Cal., out to Santa Catalina Island and back. The distance each way was 33 miles: the time on the outward flight was 37 minutes. While the world gaped failing to reach his goal of mile-a-minute speed.

Now the flight has been re-enacted, in a form that dramatizes the quarter-century's progress in aviation. Martin's craft this time was one of his huge Pacific Ocean than he had in flying over the Catalina Channel. His flying time on this occasion was 15 minutes, no sensational speed but better than two miles a minute.

Yes, aviation has progressed considerably in 25 years. The records suggest many another interesting contrast, in addition to Martin's demonstration. There was, for instance, the record-breaking flight of Tony Jannus by hydro-airplane from Omaha to New Orleans, covering the greatest total distance ever made record book of that year dwells particularly on his remarkable time from Omaha to St. Louis, nine hours the express trains." How the Labor Relations Act Works

Explanation of law and answers to most frequent questions are given by N L R B official; measure does not take away employer's right to fire worker, regional director says, but does forbid discharge for union activity; recognition of labor organization as sole bargaining agency required when majority of employes join it.

By Elinore M. Herrick, Regional Director of the National Labor Relations Board; Written for the Associated Press.

THE main purpose of the National Labor Relations Board is to arrive at an amicable adjustment of complaints.

Our experience has taught us it would often be a mistake to rush the teeth of the law into action. The maladjustments more often are the result of ignorance or a misunderstanding of the law than a stubborn desire to violate it. The law's teeth are there and they can always be brought bear after we ascertain that the lawlessness is deliberate and willful.

Since the Supreme Court held the National Labor Relations Act constitutional, ninetenths of my telephone calls have been from employers. Labor organizations seem better informed on the technique of the board than do the employers. Perhaps this is because employers did not pay sufficient attention to the act and to the board before that Monday. That is too bad, because if general knowledge of the act and of the methods of the board were more widespread, we could make greater speed in adjusting misunderstandings existing between employers and employes.

To begin with, the Labor Board does not go looking for cases. They must be brought to the board. This must be done in a specific manner-that is, by filing definite and specific charges of violations of the act.

When a charge alleging violation of the act is filed with the board, it steps into the picture. There follows a definite formula. We first try to bring both sides together informally. If this fails to bring about compliance with the terms of the law, the regional office issues a formal complaint, like a bill of particulars in a court action.

The law violator then can be subpensed to appear before the board, where a formal trial is held before a trial examiner assigned by the Washington office. The hearing is conducted just like a trial in any court.

The examiner then hands down to the regional director a report containing his findings and recommendations. The regional director then serves it on both parties and tries to get them to comply within a definite space of time, generally 10 days.

If one or both sides still remain obdurate, the regional director refers the case to the in Washington for further action. What they do there is to study the transcript of the testimony and issue a decision, which is then served upon both parties again, in the hope of reaching an agreement. If no remedy is still forthcoming, the board then can go into Federal court and ask for an enforcement order. Violation of this order means contempt of court, with the usual penalties. I have become accustomed to the questions asked me by "big business" men since that famous Monday. One of the most frequently heard questions is this one:

"Mrs. Herrick, what should I do if an employe asks me if he should join the union?" The reply comes readily, and invariably I point out: "Your employes are free, white and 21.' Why don't you tell them to make up their own minds? Tell them it is no concern of yours, and you can't go wrong, if that's what is worrying you." Often I am asked if employes have the right to organize during working hours. Obviously, the answer is No. But some employers do not fully understand that the lunch period is not working time. It is the employes' own time, to do with as they wish. And even if they are having lunch on the company property, they may attend freely to their union business, free of any hindrance on the part of the employer. I am asked many times what recognition of the union means.

This means, simply, accepting the union as the exclusive bargaining agent for the employes who have designated it to act for them. A union becomes this exclusive bargaining agent when a majority of the emploves have signified, through the act of joining it, or through an election, that they want this union to represent them Recognition of the union also means that an agreement with respect to wages, working conditions and hours. There is generally a supplementary ques-

the employer and the union will enter into tion following this: "Do I have to put that agreement in writing?" My answer customarily is: "As a business man, you don't execute any important arrangement without putting it into writing. The signatures of the parties concerned fix their responsibility for their acts. If there is no desire to avoid assuming that responsibility, why should any man object to putting the agreement into writing?"

Another question is: "Do we have to reach an agreement as a result of collective bargaining?"

This question generally elicits the response that if reasonable people sit down with the intent of reaching an agreement, the reasonable presumption is that they will reach it. When they cannot, it is possible to set up machinery whereby a third person-not the regional director-can be brought in as an impartial arbitrator. But that is rarely necessary when the intentions of both parties are honest and both sincerely wish to reach an agreement.

Then there is always this question: "Does the law take away my right to fire an em-

The answer to this one is quite plain: "No. it does not. You have the full right to hire and fire as always. But the law does place this restriction on that right: You cannot fire an employe because he is a member of a union or because he is active in union organization."

THE London (Tex.) school horror has its beneficent by-product in Secretary Ickes' report to the Senate that 1178 school buildings in the United States are unsafe. Of these buildings, 501 are fire hazards, 437 are so crowded that "panic hazard" exists; others are structurally unsound, or so deficient in sanitation and ventilation that health is threatened.

Just as a series of plane crashes roused a demand for tighter Government supervision of commercial flying, the London disaster has centered attention on widespread carelessness in the physical plants of our educational system. So something will be donewe hope a good deal-to abate the most flagrant offenses against safety and health.

JAPAN NAMES BOARD TO STUDY PRICE RISE

Commission Includes 15 Leaders of Business and 13 Officials.

(Special Cable.)

TOKIO, May 12. - The Cabinet of Gen. Senjuro Hayashi approved yesterday creation of a special commission of 28 members to study the causes of the upward trend of prices and to devise methods to check the rising cost of living. The commission includes 15 so-called ordinary members, comprising the of Japanese big business and industry, and 13 Government officials.

The cost of all commodities in Japan has been rising rapidly with-in recent months, leading to an increasing number of strikes and labor disputes.

According to figures compiled by the Bank of Japan, the general index of wholesale prices has risen 25 per cent within the last year and 64 per cent compared with 1932. Retail prices have lagged somewhat behind wholesale prices, but are keeping up with the trend and have risen 9 per cent within the last year and 32 per cent within the last five years.

These figures are considered extremely conservative, and it is popularly believed that the cost of living has advanced 20 per cent within the last two months, which is the amount of the wage increase being demanded in all recent labor disputes. Premier Hayashi will be president of the commission, and there will be three vice-presidents, including Finance Minister Toyotaro Yuki, Minister of Commerce and Indus-try Taku Godo and Minister of Agriculture and Forestry Tatsunok-The first meeting will be held at the Premier's residence on May The newspaper Asahi reports that Yuki's idea is "to avert in-flation by expansion of industrial production, in order to balance supply and demand. The rise in prices is attributed red ink bonds to make up the deficit in the budget, increased military expenditures and new

$161,429 CLAIM ON BANKRUPT MERAMEC CEMENT CO. DENIED

Dr. Bernard F. Striegel Bought Promissory Note From Bank April 25, 1936.

The claim of Dr. Bernard F. Strie gel, a physician, for $161,429 against the bankrupt Meramec Portland Cement & Materials Co., formerly operated by his brother-in-law, George and Al Ratermann, was denied yesterday by Referee in Bank ruptcy John A. Hope.

The claim, based on a promissory note given in 1931 by the Merame firm to the Ratermann Building & Contracting Co., also controlled by the Ratermann brothers, had been opposed by the bankruptcy trustee, Elmer E. Pearcy, on the ground the note was an accommodation paper, for which no value had been received, and that it had been given without authorization of the Meramec board of directors Al Ratermann had testified at a hearing that he and his brother had interested Dr. Striegel in the note, telling him he "could make some money" by buying it. The physician purchased the note April 25, 1936, from the Northwestern Trust Co., which had taken it over as collateral on a defaulted deed of trust. Hans Wulff, attorney for the trustee, said yesterday disallowance of the claim would make possible a 60 per cent payment to cent if the claim had been allowed.

he dressed like a peacock, ate like a buzzard, drank like a fish.

THE perfumed dandy of seventeenth L century England was anything but dainty at the table. Diet meant nothing to him. He gorged himself with rich, half-cooked foods; guzzled thunderheaded wines; tossed down cupfuls of fierce, raw spirits! What punishment his system was forced to endure!

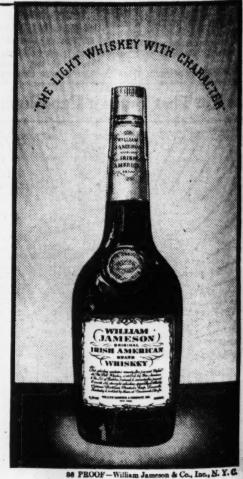

Modern man's constitution is not conditioned to such abuse. Even if he wanted to he couldn't take it the way this "sissy" took it in those "good (?) old days"

Discriminating men of today have critical taste. They have more regard for common sense rules of health. Their systems are more highly keyed and delicately balanced. They do not gorgeand if they drink, drink lightly.

Casey, the chief legislative lieutenant of Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, the Senator who had professional welfare pending before the State Legisla- and who had denounced with withering sarcasm on many occasions, the creation of new boards and commissions, should be the introducer of a non-political departmental bill, a bill definitely placing the administration in professional welfare workers and a bill creating a huge new department. On the floor McReynolds took charge of the fight for the Casey bill and succeeded in striking out amendments which had been added in the committee. On unemployment compensation, which was McReynolds' chief interest, again Casey and McReynolds plan, which had been defeated in the committee, was carried when McReynolds submitted his amendment on the floor. Casey voted with McReynolds. Kinney voted agains nim. On this occasion, Brogan lined up with Casey.

Again, in a fight McReynolds made on features of the bill rewriting the investment provisions of the life insurance law, Casey joined with him. They were de feated, but they went down together on the one bill

New Combine Mentioned on Floor The strange new association has even caused comment on the floor. In the debate on the Social Security Commission bill Senator Donnelly of Lebanon commented facetiously on "the new corporation."

Senator Lockridge of Fayette suggested it might be "a partner-ship instead of a corporation." Senator McReynolds, in the same vein, took cognizance of the comment with the statement: "It could hardly be a corporation because a corporation issues stocks and bonds, and neither Senator Casey nor I have any stocks or bonds for sale. It could not be a partnership because in a partnership one partner may bind the other, and I feel certain that Senator Casey would not want me to bind him and I am equally certain that there would be times when I would not want Senator Casey to bind me.

"It seems to me it is in the nature of a joint adventure (a legal which each party gaged in a common enterprise has perfect freedom of action."

Senators Can't Quite Believe It. Senators, recognizing that there a change in the Casey-Kinney-Brogan relationship and that the Kansas City Senator has chosen to throw in his lot with McReynolds on important legislation, are in a at a definite and fixed alliance between two such forceful and different individuals as Casey and McReynolds, whose outlook, political associations and outside contacts are as far apart as could be With a number of Senators, however, there is a satisfactory political explanation for a break-up of the old combine. They have evolved a rather complicated political situation involving Gov. Stark, United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Mayor Dickmann, Boss Pendergast and almost all the other emocrats of outstanding prom-

Cloakroom Theory.

This is the story being talked in Swift Minotto. the Senate cloakroom: That Clark s charged by Pendergast with responsibility for the grand jury in- FIVE CONVICTED OF RIOTING vestigation of Kansas City election frauds being conducted by United States District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, a Clark appointee, and that Clark arranged in Washington for all the Department of Justice aid that Milligan needed.

That Pendergast is determined to defeat Clark for renomination next year and that Clark, realizing that the opposition of the power-ful boss-controlled vote in Kansas City would be costly to him, has arranged an alliance with Gov. Stark and Mayor Dickmann.

That the Mayor is to throw the strength of his organization in St. Louis to Clark as against anybody who might oppose him, that the Governor is to appoint an Election Board in Kansas City which will prevent boss manipulation of the primary, that the Mayor is to have the support of this new faction for the nomination for Governor in 1940, that the Governor is to be the faction's choice for the nomination to succeed the Pendergast Senator, Truman, in 1940, and that there is to be a well-organized war against

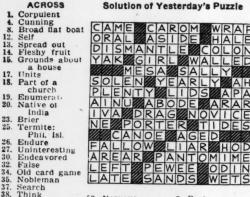

Pendergast and his organization. a part of the Dickmann organization, must necessarily be enlisted in the anti-Pendergast coalition. and therefore Casey can no longer have truck with them and must use his every effort to submerge

Enough Substance to Cause Gossip. It is a story in which any po-litical student could find many flaws, undoubtedly, but there is just enough substance to it to make it a matter of persistent gossip in the Capitol. It might account for a break between Casey and Kinney and Brogan, and, on the theory that Casey was courting strength wherever he might find it, it might account for the very evident friendly feeling he is showing toward Mc-

It might be, however, that by the time 1940 comes that the grow-ing sentiment among independent and anti-boss Democrats to have the nomination for Governor go to McReynolds would be so strong that to defeat the supposed Stark-Clark-Dickmann alliance the Kansas City boss would be forced to support McReynolds, whose record is the antithesis of all that the boss would want in a Governor.

Chicago wheat prices much of the time today showed a tendency to lag.

In some cases, declines of wheat values here amounted to about a cent a bushel.

Railles, however, were frequent. Owing to monthly readjustment of accounts, May monthly readjustment of accounts, May wheat led the declines of prices. Contributing to the downward market trend were reports of light moisture in parts of spring wheat territory as well as in domestic winter crop sections.

Advices at hand said Canada was enjoying the earliest spring wheat seeding season since 1931. More than 45 per cent of Canada's spring wheat seeding was reported as complete, against only 8 per cent of Canada's spring wheat seeding was reported as complete, against only 8 per cent of Canada's spring wheat seeding was related. Included in today's foreign arrivals lare were 162,000 bushels of Argentine corn received from Montreal via the Great Lakes.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 45,019,000 bushels, corn 11,866,000. Open interest in wheat was 92,409,000 bushels, and in corn 33,507,000.

By the Associated Press, NEW YORK, May 12.—Restricted frac-tional movements, a few off more than up, characterized listless trading in the bond market today.

BOND LIST MIXED

tional movements, a few off more than up, characterized istless trading in the bond market today.

U. S. Governments gave up moderate fractions with setbacks ranging from 1-32 to 11-32 of a point. Omly a portion of the list was active and a number of bonds failed to open.

Domestic corporates likewise moved sluggishly with rail and utility obligations generally lower and the rest of the division even to a little higher. Northwestern 4½ s lowered ½ to 18½, American Water Works 6s dropped ½ to 104½ and "Katy" 5s fell 1 to 78.

Foreigns were quiet and little altered on the day.

Firmness of various top grade liens was regarded as a sign of a friendlier attitude on part of institutional and individual purchasers. This developed, according to investment circles following the disclosure of a comfortable position on excess reserves after the banks met the May 1 reserve increase, and with signs of returning life in the market for new issues.

The moderate buying in this section of the market touched American Telephone 3¼s, Anaconda Copper 4½s, Bethlehem Steel 3¾s and Union Pacific 3½s.

BOND NOTES.

Foreign loans were neglected.

ROND NOTES.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Phelps-Dodge Corporation, New York City, notified the Securities Commission that it intends to issue $20,285,000 of convertible debentures due June 15, 1952, to help finance a $40,000,000 development of its properties in Arlzona. The statement also covered an undetermined number of shares of $25 par value capital stock to be reserved for conversion of the debentures. The debentures are to be offered to capital stock holders on the basis of $4 principal amount for each share of stock held. The company said it would use proceeds of the debentures to finance the following five-year program: $2507.000 for equipment at the Copper Queen branch at Bisbee, Ariz.; $4.171.500 for equipment at the Cornelia branch at Ajo, Ariz.; $959.000 for equipment at the United Verde branch at Jerome, Ariz.; $28,760,000 for opening and equipping the clay ore body at Morenci branch, Morenci, Ariz.; $3,573,000 for miscellaneous buildings and additional machinery and $85,000 for miscellaneous purposes.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Public offering was made of a new issue of $6,500,000 Wilson & Co. 3% per cent debentures, due in 1947, at 101 and interest, by a syndicate headed by Edward B. Smith & Co. Proceeds from the issue will be used to liquidate short term bank notes.

Less Beet Sugar Acreage Contracted.

By the Associated Press.
PILAINFIELD, N. J., May 12.—Great Western Sugar Co. has contracted for 14 per cent less beet sugar acreage this year than in 1936, W. L. Petrikin, chairman, told stockholders at the annual meeting.
The reduction was due, he explained, to the high prices for general line crops in Great Western's territory. In other areas the beet sugar acreage appears likely to be as great as last year or even larger, he said.

Beet purchase contracts this year provide for higher payments to farmers, Petrikin said.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

DON'T believe there's a country in the world where good sportsmanship is appreciated as much as it is over here. People'll pack a stadium to see a good fighter and they'll cheer him as long as he fights fair, but the minute he does anything unsportsman-like the whole audience will rise up in a body and boo him. I had one uncle, my Uncle Orie, who never amounted to very much because he was always gettin' into fights, but. I always admired him because he had such a sense of honor and fair play. A big bully down home picked on Uncle Orie one time and my uncle challenged the big man to a duel with pistols. The big man says, "That wouldn't be fair because I'm so much easier to hit than you are." Uncle Orie says, "Well, you take a piece of chalk and you mark my size on your body and if I hit outside the chalk mark, it don't count!" (Copyright, 1937.)

At duplicate, however, this philosophy does not apply. When the uestion of a close game is involved there is nothing wrong in stopping one short. If your contract is the limit of the hand, you will make a splendid score, and even if game is possible by expert play you can bolster your score by playing well and obtaining that extra trick. Particularly in defensive bidding must aggressiveness give way to caution Here is a hand in which one play er outwitted his opponent by supe

The bidding:
South West North East
1 club 3 diamonds 4 clubs Pass

South's pass of four clubs was quite contrary to all conventions of bidding, but in duplicate was shrewd strategy. With such a long suit and a raise from partner to the four level, it was an odds-on chance that if the opponents were to persist with diamonds, North-South would take few, if any, club tricks. It also seemed highly prob-able that the opponents, with their superior suit, would not permit a game contract in clubs to stand, and South had reason to doubt that a five-diamond contract could be defeated as much as two tricks. If he could hold the bid for four clubs, even though five were in the hand, South could score 150 points (with the 50 part-score bonus). If the opponents overbid to five diamonds, however, and went down one trick even though doubled, this would be only 100 points.

West was pretty much on the spot when South passed to four clubs. He was more than willing to bid four diamonds, but, as far as he could tell, this merely would elicit a five-club bid and force him to defend at five diamonds. At this latter, he might easily go down two tricks doubled and, thus, a pass to four clubs was not so bad.

As may be seen, South actually did make five clubs, and West could have been defeated only one trick at five diamonds.

In Growth Is Hard to Bear THERE has been an outbreak of Conflict With Parents Is Frequent During Adoles cence.

By Angelo Patri

THIS bit of advice and suggestion is offered the teen-age girls who find life rather hard. I am not going to say, "Cheer up," or "Forget it." I know that you cannot cheer up or forget it when you feel bad about thinks that you cannot help, such as having a father who won't let you learn to dance, won't let the boys come to the house, won't let you go down the street alone so you can walk back with the boy you like best.

Nor can I say, "Don't worry when you are left out of the parties, remain wall flowers at the school parties, get no phone calls in the evening, have no girl friends or boy friends running in to talk things over." I know you are grieving about your lack of popularity, and unless I can say something helpful there is no use in saying anything. Maybe this will help a little.

You are in a halfway stage of growth. You think you know nough to shoulder responsibility for yourself, but in your heart you know that you cannot do that. You seesaw in your mind and that makes you uncertain in all you do. Your uncertainty makes father more certain that you cannot take care of yourself and sets him more solidly against your social ambitions. He thinks that No Boys is foot and a half long, ending at your he safest way out.

You see, then, the root of the trouble you are enduring lies in your stage of growth, something nobody can help. Time will help it. In the meantime, try to find some way of showing father, prov-ing it by your behavior, that you can be trusted, that you have good sense. You must prove it by actions. Words won't do.

FEEP your word strictly. If you say that you will do something, do it no matter what. If you hour, get there. If you say you are go-ing down the street to Mary's house, one, go to Mary's house, alone, and return that way. I mean that once you have proven to your father and mother that your word is good, that your head is set right on your shoulders, they are going to trust you and be proud of it. The parents who refuse to trust a trust-worthy daughter out of their sight are few and far between. They are like all other people. They act on their experiences. Make those right and you will have less trouble.

you are trying to live beyond your Sex attraction-don't be afraid of that term-is not a characteristic of childhood, or early adolescence. There are some girls who mature in that particular rather early, but that does not mean that such maturity is desirable. Rather the other way. The longer the period of preparation the better the product, every time. Be patient and wait until you ow up sufficiently to be attractive to the boys and young men. It is largely a matter of maturity that troubles you. All girls in good health are attractive when they arrive. Wait for that time.

When you are at a loss and can find no way out, confide in the teacher you like best, even if that s the teacher you had way back in the One A. Don't talk too much about yourself to other girls. Find the right grown up person. And all the time, cultivate your mind and your body toward usefulness. The most popular person in society is the one that is most useful.

The first course of the dinner, no matter whether it be soup, cocktail or fruit cup, should be on the table before the guests are seated.

FASHION REMINISCENCE By Marjorie Hillis

fashion reminiscence lately, in newspapers and magazines, and it's fun to look at the illustrations and read the articles. "Did I ever look like that?" you think, as you gaze at a figure in a bathing-suit with full elbow sleeves, a sailor collar and a dickie, and long, thick black stockings. And you probab ly did, and thought you were pretty chic, too—as no doubt you were. But there was one period, exactly 10 years ago, when we may have been chic, but we couldn't have worn clothes that made us look less alluring. Katharine Brush has written a most entertaining article about that year of 1927, in which she recalls the slang we tween were those hideous garments used and the plays we saw and the songs we sang and the books we read. She reminds us that that was the year when Greta Garbo dawned on us, and-above and beyond anything else—the year of the You clutched them grimly around you, and hung onto your bag at great Lindbergh flight. She recalls, too, that we wore knee-length dresses shaped like rectangles and

Your evening dresses were apt to be beaded with hard, shiny little beads, and that is the year that stands out in my mind as the year of the World's Worst Fashions. Look through any illustrated volume of period costume and you won't find a style to touch it in ugliness, from the time of the Pharaohs straight down to the current mode. Bustles may have been ludicrous and hobble skirts silly, but neither was half as unkind to the wearer as these little horrors made up of a perfectly straight to psection ending around your hips and a perfectly straight lower section scarcely more than a foot and a half long, ending at your foot and a half long, ending at your for the time of the Pharaohs straight for the wearer as these little horrors made up of a perfectly straight foot and a half long, ending at your foot and a half long, ending at your sevening dresses were apt to be beaded with hard, shiny little beads, and they were sleeveless, regardless of whether your arms were good-looking or not.

SYNOPSIS. Doris Randel, lovely young girl, was n love with Terry Waters, a hand-ome and penniless young man. But now with Terry Waters, a handsome and penniless young man. But she married James Bellane, a middleaged man of means. To learn about Bellane, Terry became friendly with Helen Forrest, attractive widow, who had been, and was still, in love with Bellane. In love with Helen was Mat Westward, a doctor, who was Bellane's best man at his wedding. On her wedding trip Doris began to find her husband "old fashioned." And Bellane decided his young wife ought to have children. At home she received a letter from Terry Waters.
She met him and took him to her husband's b achelor apartment, to which he had given her the key. She admitted she wasn't happy in her marriage.

THE HIRED CROWN—When George IV succeeded to the throne of Great Britain in 1820, he ordered a sumptuous crown, but Rundell and Bridge, court jewelers refused to deliver it until paid $750,000. Lord Liverpool refused to sanction this expenditure by the Treasury, and so the jewelers consented to lend the crown for the coronation for $80,000. The coronation with a hired crown took place in Sept 8, 1821. Later $800,000 was raised by popular subscription, and the crown purchased from the jewelers. At Queen Victoria's accession, the crown was altered by the same jewelers to fit the young Queen.
